III. READING

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the Questions from 1 to 10.(2.0P)

We live in a world of tired, sleep deprived people. In his book Counting Sheep, Paul Martin - a behavioural biologist - describes a society which is just too busy to sleep and which does not give sleeping the importance it deserves. Modern society has invented reasons not to sleep. We are now a 24/7 society where shops and services must be available all hours. We spend longer hours at work than we used to, and more time getting to work.

Mobile phones and email allow us to stay in touch round the clock and late-night TV and the Internet tempt us away from our beds. When we need more time for work or pleasure, the easy solution is to sleep less. The average adult sleeps only 6.2 hours a night during the week, whereas research shows that most people need eight or even eight and a half to feel at their best. Nowadays, many people have got used to sleeping less than they need and they live in an almost permanent state of 'sleep debt'.

Until the invention of the electric light in 1879 our daily cycle of sleep used to depend on the hours of daylight. People would get up with the sun and go to bed at nightfall. But nowadays our hours of sleep are mainly determined by our working hours (or our social life) and most people are woken up artificially by an alarm clock. During the day caffeine, the world's most popular drug, helps to keep us awake. 75% of the world's population habitually consume caffeine, which up to a point masks the symptoms of sleep deprivation.

What does a chronic lack of sleep do to us? As well as making us irritable and unhappy as humans, it also reduces our motivation and ability to work. This has serious Implications for society in general. Doctors, for example, are often chronically sleep deprived, especially when they are on 'night call', and may get less than three hours' sleep. Lack of sleep can seriously impair their mood, judgment, and ability to take decisions. Tired engineers, in the early hours of the morning, made a series of mistakes with catastrophic results. On our roads and motorways lack of sleep kills thousands of people every year. Tests show that a tired driver can be just as dangerous as a drunken driver. However, driving when drunk is against the law but driving when exhausted isn't As Paul Martin says, it is very ironic that we admire people who function on very little sleep instead of criticizing them for being irresponsible. Our world would be a much safer, happier place if everyone, whatever their job, slept eight hours a night.

Question 1: According to the passage, which of the following statements is TRUE about Paul Martin?

- A. He shows his concern for sleep deprivation in modern society,
- B. He describes the modern world as a place without insomnia
- C. He is a scientist who is chronically deprived of sleep
- D. He gives an interesting account of a sleepless society,

Question 2: The phrase "round the clock" in the second paragraph is similar in meaning to,

- A. surrounded with clocks
- B. having a round clock
- C. during the daytime
- D. all day and night

Question 3: The writer mentions the internet in the passage as _____.

- A. an easy solution to sleep deprivation
- B. a temptation that prevents us from sleeping
- C. a factor that is not related to sleep deprivation
- D. an ineffective means of communication

Question 4: According to the third paragraph, which of the following statements is NOT TRUE?

- A. The electric light was invented in the 19th century.

- B. The sun obviously determined our daily routines.
- C. The electric light has changed our daily cycle of sleep.
- D. Our social life has no influence on our hours of sleep.

Question 5: The word "which" in the third paragraph refers to.

- A. the world's population
- B. caffeine consumption
- C. reaching a point
- D. masking the symptoms

Question 6: Which of the following is TRUE, according to the last paragraph?

- A. Sleep deprivation has negative effects on both individuals and society.
- B. Doctors 'on night call' do not need more than three hours of sleep a day.
- C. Thousands of people are killed every day by drunken drivers,
- D. Our motivation decreases with the bigger number of hours we sleep.

Question 7: The word "catastrophic" in the last paragraph probably means

- A. likely to become worthless
- B. becoming more noticeable
- C. bound to bring satisfaction
- D. causing serious damage or loss

Question 8: Which of the following would the writer of the passage approve of?

- A. Both drunken drivers and sleep-deprived people should be criticized.
- B. There is no point in criticizing irresponsible people in our society.
- C. We certainly can function well even when we hardly sleep.
- D. Our world would be a much safer place without drinkers.

Question 9: All of the following are mentioned as those whose performance is affected by 'sleep debt' EXCEPT

- A. drivers
- B. doctors
- C. engineers
- D. biologists

Question 10: Which of the following could best serve as the title of the passage?

- A. A Well-known Biologist
- B. Sleep Deprivation: Causes and Effects
- C. Accident Prevention: Urgent!
- D. A Society of Sleepless People

A modern genius

Stephen Hawking was one of the most famous scientists in the world. He was born in Oxford in 1942 and lived there till the day he moved to Cambridge to complete his PhD. Before this, however, people already knew that he was intelligent. When he was a kid, he enjoyed Maths and Science in school very much. He found both subjects very easy, and it was while he was studying there that his friends began to call him 'Einstein', for fun.

Hawking's first university was actually Oxford, where he studied Physics and Chemistry. During his studies there, at the age of 21, he became very sick and had problems speaking and moving. He needed the support from a wheelchair and a computer for communication to live a normal life. When he realised he was extremely ill, he decided to work harder. This was because he really wanted to finish his PhD before he died.

Hawking finished his PhD when he was only 24. Hawking's contributions to physics earned him many exceptional achievements. In 1974, he became one of the Royal Society's youngest fellows. In 1977, he was a professor of gravitational physics at Cambridge. Later he wrote over 15 very popular science books. One of his most popular books, "A Brief History of Time", appeared on the Sunday Times bestseller list for over 200 weeks. He died at the age of 76 – definitely too early, as many say.

Climate change, also called global warming, refers to the rise in average surface temperatures (1) _____ Earth. An overwhelming scientific consensus maintains that climate change is due primarily to the human use of fossil fuels, which (2) _____ carbon dioxide and other greenhouse gases into the air. The gases trap heat within the atmosphere, which can have a range of effects on ecosystems, (3) _____ rising sea levels, severe weather events, and droughts that render landscapes more susceptible to wildfires.

While consensus among nearly all scientists, (4) _____ organizations, and governments is (5) _____ climate change is happening and is (6) _____ by human activity, a small minority of voices questions the validity of such assertions and prefers to cast doubt on the preponderance of evidence. Climate change deniers often claim that recent changes (7) _____ to human activity can be seen as part of the natural variations in Earth's climate and (8) _____, and that it is difficult or impossible to establish a direct connection between climate change and any single weather event, such as a hurricane. (9) _____ the latter is generally true, decades of data and analysis support the reality of climate change and the human factor in this process. In any case, economists agree that acting to reduce fossil fuel emissions would be far less expensive than (10) _____ with the consequences of not doing so.
